Basic Print Reading Seminar

Understanding Prints for Better Sales & More Efficient Purchasing

May 17, 2018

A Fastener Education Program

NCFA has invited MWFA to share their Print Reading Seminar with NCFA Members

Product knowledge is crucial in the fastener industry. An important part of product knowledge is the ability to read and understand prints. As the industry continues to distribute, import and manufacture more diverse products, your company's knowledge also needs to expand.

Are you aware of the types of prints?
Are you aware of the details of a print?
Are you aware of where to find standard specs?

To increase your ability to answer these and many more questions, attend the Basic Print Reading Seminar.

“The print reading class was indeed very informative. As someone coming into this industry with no prior knowledge it definitely helped me understand the basics of reading prints as it was part of my job working for a coating applicator company. I definitely learned a lot that day as far as what the symbols on the prints mean, the basic necessities to develop a print and how to look for specific information when a print is given to you. The activities were fun and good ways to apply what we learned as I find myself a more visual learner. I definitely enjoyed being able to take home a copy of the presentation, it’s helps me remember what to look for when I’m at work!”

“I found the MWFA Print Reading Seminar very useful and worth the time and effort. The facilitator was very knowledgeable and presented the material in an interesting manner. He presented the basics through lecture, real life examples and “hands on” sessions. I would recommend the seminar to anyone who needs a good base for print reading.”
